A delay in completion of any of the renewal steps will require the shortening of subsequent steps in the process to ensure renewal accreditation is achieved prior to the expiration date. If an applicant has not completed the renewal process by its accreditation date, the organization's accreditation may be suspended.

*If a new edition of the Standards is published prior to completion of the accreditation process, the inspection will occur under the edition of Standards effective at the time of inspection; this may require the submission of a new application.

**If the organization is inspected prior to expiration, an additional 90 days following accreditation expiration may be granted as a grace period to complete the process. If the Accreditation Committee requires a reinspection of all or part of the organization, the grace period will not be granted.

***If Accreditation Committee review of the responses is required, an additional one to three months will be required to complete the process.
